

Local Advice Is Necessary in City School Work Plan

New High Principal Says Business, Professional People Should Be Consulted

School systems must seek the advice of local business and professional people in planning a curriculum designed to be of greatest benefit to all students, John Henry Martin, newly appointed principal of Kingston High School, told members of the Kingston Lions Club at their meeting Tuesday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

A school should not be isolated from the community, he said, and a curriculum should not be planned by a group of teachers working alone without assistance from the outside world.

"I propose to invite local businessmen to serve on working committees to review the curriculum and help the teachers plan a program to take best advantage of the capabilities of every youngster," he said.

Practical H.S. System
The new principal, who was brought here from Oyster Bay to replace Clarence Dunn, who retired this spring, said tribute to the vocational training program at Kingston High School, which, he said, "is known throughout the state."

At the same time, he noted that even more is necessary than a good academic program and a good vocational program. About 50 per cent of the students are neither vocationally minded nor "college adequate," he said, and in some places this 50 per cent have been neglected.

Martin's talk followed one by Harry T. Gumaer, new principal of the Myron J. Michael Junior High School, who traced the development of education on the secondary level.

"At first a fixed curriculum was presented for everyone who went to high school. And very few attended high school. Then, as a greater portion of people began to remain in school, they made two courses—one for the 'best people' and another for those who could measure up to the highly artificial standards of the best course. People were persuaded to take the more academic type of course because it was a way of keeping up with their neighbors. And the entire set-up was characterized by a high drop-out rate. Many (drop-outs), later leaders in community life, apparently learned more out of school than in," he said.

Courses Meet Needs
Educators have learned much since those days, he said. The point is that in Kingston the junior and senior high schools offer 17 different courses, each suited to the needs of a different type of student. There is a testing program which attempts to ascertain the aptitudes and interests of each child in order to help him find the right course, he added.

"Knowledge is more than the taking of subjects. A program of sports, music and dramatics and radio production, clubs and student participation in government are all parts of learning," Gumaer said.

Needs of high school students, he said, have been listed by authorities as "work, experience, performance of citizenship, an appreciation of good and beautiful things, tolerance, and how to speak, write, read and figure."

"In Kingston schools you will find a sincere effort to achieve these goals," Gumaer concluded. The two new school principals were introduced to the club by Harry Gold, program chairman. Also present was Paul Patchin of Kinderhook, new district governor of the Lions Club, who was introduced by Theodore Lee, president of the Kingston Lions. Patchin made a short address, expressing his pleasure at being able to visit with local club members.

Kingston Schools Selected for Cadets

When the Kingston public schools open on September 6, the teaching staff will have assigned to it six cadet teachers. The Kingston school system has been selected as a place where excellent training in practice teaching is made available to students attending teachers colleges.

Ithaca College is assigning Jane LaMotte and John Smith to work in the physical education department also. Eleanor D'Alie and Thomas Jacobson will do practice teaching in the commercial department. Potsdam State Teachers College, a college well known for the training of music teachers, is sending Thomas Cullane and Charles Barone to do practice teaching in the music department.

Later in the school year other students or cadet teachers will be assigned to the Kingston school system. It is a credit to Kingston school system to have colleges select it as a place where students may get excellent practice as student teachers.

Legion Calls for Help Against China Reds

Johnson Declares U. S. Must Keep Awake, Prepared

Ramparts Must Be Strong to Ward Off Attack From Aggression, He Tells Legion

Philadelphia, Aug. 31 (AP)—By "keeping awake and preparing accordingly" America can assure permanent peace, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson said today.

"We shall build our ramparts so strong that no aggressor will dare attack us."

"We must achieve peace, and we will achieve it. We will achieve it in the only way possible in this world of today—affirmatively—by untimely strength on land and sea and in the air," the defense secretary told the 31st National American Legion in a prepared address.

Johnson, in what he called his first public address as head of the new Department of Defense, said peace has been elusive in the past.

"Twice in our lifetime we had it in our hands. Twice we let it slip away. Now we have it again with us in our grasp and this time we must be determined not to let it go."

Drawing a parallel between two postwar eras, Johnson said Russia continued on V-J Day with plans of her own just as Japan, plotting aggression, did after the armistice was signed in 1918.

Russia has pushed her troops "into the military void among the peoples on her borders," the defense secretary declared.

"Into every political vacuum anywhere in the world she began to pour her vicious propaganda against her erstwhile allies."

But there, the defense secretary said, "the parallel between the two postwar years suddenly stops. We may have been dozing alright, but we had not yet fallen completely asleep. We caught ourselves in time. Now we are fully awake, grimly determined that history shall not repeat itself."

Fact-Finders Will Propose Steel Settlement to Truman

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—Presidential fact-finders went to work today to shape their recommendations for preventing a national steel strike. They have abandoned a mediation plan.

The three-man board yesterday withdrew its offer to serve as mediator in the dispute after industry leaders insisted the negotiations would have to be on an individual company basis.

This, said Board Chairman Carroll Daugherty, would be "physically impossible."

He said the board would begin immediately the job of weighing evidence and drawing up proposals for a settlement between the companies and the C.I.O. United Steel Workers.

These recommendations, which won't be binding on either side, are due in President Truman's hands by September 10.

That will leave the disputants three days to try to get together on the basis of the recommendations—before the steelworkers' September 14 strike deadline.

Friendship With Nation Means U. S. Can't Let Communists Take Over

Philadelphia, Aug. 31 (AP)—The American Legion called on the United States today to support "any patriotic group or organization of Chinese" who would fight Communists.

The resolution, drafted by the Legion's Foreign Relations Committee, was adopted unanimously.

A century proposal, reported under discussion early this week, to "write off" China as lost was not offered.

"The Legion's 31st Annual Convention adopted the resolution which asserts that:

"Our long friendship and participation in common causes with the Chinese impels us to reject defeatism and abandonment of this area to Communist aggressors."

The convention adopted unanimously these other resolutions of the Foreign Policy Committee:

Endorsement of the United Nations, the Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Pact.

The convention settled down to serious business today on the third of its four-day convention.

Merry Parade
Yesterday Legionnaires made merry in a gigantic 12-hour parade called the Legion's "revels."

He said the crowd—estimated by Police Superintendent Guy E. Parsons at more than 1,500,000, was the biggest ever to view the spectacle.

Under consideration today are proposals to end the peace time draft, continue civilian control of the atom bomb under U. S. monopoly and to draw up a strong anti-Communist law.

First resolution adopted by the convention calls on Congress to enact "maximum social security credit for active time served in the armed forces" during the second World War.

The resolution, presented by the Michigan department, asks maximum wage credits of $250 per month.

Square Deal for Children
Other resolutions called for (1) a federal law to make child day care available to all.

Fire Above Bakery Damages Home; 2 Firemen Burned

Mrs. Emil Friedel Is Singed on Forehead Looking for Son, 5, Who Was Safe

Fire of undetermined origin damaged the second floor and attic of the two-story frame house at 514 Delaware avenue, owned by Emil Friedel, local baker, early last night.

Two firemen were injured slightly in fighting the blaze which was discovered at 7:37 p. m., and Mrs. Elizabeth Friedel narrowly escaped serious burns when she opened an upstairs door in search for her five-year-old son, Alfred, who was safely with neighbors at the time.

Fireman Howard Whitaker suffered burns of the right thumb and second finger and Fireman Philip Ahl suffered a burn and a cut on the right arm and a cut on the left arm.

Mrs. Friedel's hair near the forehead was slightly singed, she said today.

No Damage Estimate
No estimate on the extent of damage to the building was available this morning.

The alarm at 7:37 p. m. from box 2421, Delaware avenue and Hanvatty street, was followed by an unauthorized or incidental second alarm at 7:30 p. m. from box 2431 at Delaware and Third avenues.

Engine No. 1 and truck No. 1, of central station, Corbitt and Union companies answered the first alarm, and Engine 2, of Cornell, and Rapid, answered the second with Wicks Engine Company covering at central station.

Started in Bedroom
The official report on the fire said it started in a middle bedroom on the second floor, spread out through windows and doors up to an attic window. It also spread through a window to the attic in the room where it originated. Heat and flames spread to a year bedroom.

Damage by fire and water was extensive on the second floor and there was some water damage to the kitchen and hall on the first floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Friedel and daughter, Ann, 11, were in the first floor kitchen, and were unaware that a fire was raging above them.

Mrs. Friedel said she had heard a noise and went outside to look and discovered the fire at about the same time a neighbor, Mrs. F. C. Frazee of Hanvatty street, shouted to her.

The alarm was sounded by Gerard Hickey, who lives in the neighborhood.

Firemen said flames were coming out of the two front windows when they arrived.

Four Lines of Hose
The fire was reported under control at 8:40 p. m., but firemen remained at the scene until shortly after 10 p. m. Four lines of hose were used.

The two alarms on the fire attracted large crowds to the area, and the police department acted quickly dispatching patrolmen to the scene. Officers Hanley, Fagan, Burns, Haines, Van Steenburgh, Ronnenberg, Tomhave, Wells and Barroff, were detailed to cover the area. The street was reported open to traffic at 10:14 p. m.

Bakery service was not interrupted by the fire.

August Makes Cool Exit; Rainfall Normal
August indicated today it would bow out coolly after contributing 14 hot days to a total of 52 since June in which the temperature was 90 and above, and despite its many dry, hot days, it achieved a rainfall described as "about normal."

The city engineer's record shows a rainfall for the month as compared to 3.97 inches in July, which was also considered normal for that month.

The last hot day was Sunday when the mercury reached 98, and then ended three days of torrid weather which began last Friday following several days of cool weather. The month at its outset contributed 10 of the 52 hot days to the summer's record.

On the cool side was the 49 degrees of August 20, which was the low overnight for that date, and the lowest overnight temperature since June 10.

The lowest maximum temperature for the month was 75 on August 18, and that was the lowest all-day temperature since June 9.

The contract is for clearing the site and building access roads to the plant which is to be a 60,000-kilowatt installation and is to be built at an estimated cost of between 12 and 13 million dollars.

City Schools Open Sept. 6; Schedule Given by Laidlaw

Grades Will Have Full Day of Sessions; K.H.S., M.J.M. to Quit at Noon

Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of local schools today issued specific instructions for the opening of all public schools Tuesday, September 6.

Pupils of the high school and Myron J. Michael school are scheduled to report at 8:30 a. m., and those attending the elementary schools will report at 8:40 a. m.

The following other instructions were issued by the superintendent: Kindergarten classes will be held in schools No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, No. 5, No. 6, No. 7 and No. 8. There will be no kindergarten in No. 1 school. All children must attend a year in a kindergarten before they can enter the first grade.

Children entering a kindergarten must have reached age 4 years and 7 months on or before September 6, 1949. In other words, no child born later than February 6, 1945 will be permitted to enter a kindergarten.

Children attending the public schools for the first time are required to present some legal birth record. This record may be either (1) a birth certificate, (2) a baptismal certificate, (3) a sworn affidavit, (4) a bible record, or (5) some other legal record, such as a passport or an insurance certificate.

Parents are urged to have their children register on the opening day of school. Classes are organized and seats and books are assigned the first day. It handicaps the organization if a child enters late.

On the opening day the elementary schools will have both morning and afternoon sessions. The Myron J. Michael School and the Kingston High School will have a full morning session and will dismiss at 12 noon; the afternoon will be given over to adjustment of schedules, faculty meetings, etc.

Eighth grade students entering the Myron J. Michael School are directed to report to the school auditorium and occupy the front seats. Ninth grade students in the Myron J. Michael School will take the seats at the rear of the auditorium.

Students who were registered last year in the Kingston High School shall report to their old classrooms. Students who are transferring to the Kingston High School from other high schools will report to room 151. Students who are entering Kingston High School from the ninth grade in the Myron J. Michael School will report to the auditorium and occupy the middle section.

Pupils entering the Kingston High School from the eighth grade in the Myron J. Michael School, the vocational schools and the rural schools will meet in the auditorium.

Ninth grade pupils who have planned to take a course in the Vocational School will occupy the section to the right of the stage in the high school auditorium. Students who have planned to take an art, an agriculture or a home-making course will occupy the section to the left of the stage in the high school auditorium.

Cafeteria service will be available in both the Myron J. Michael and the Kingston High School on Wednesday, September 7, the first full day of school. Cafeterias in the elementary schools will start on Thursday, September 8.

The guidance offices in both the Myron J. Michael School and the Kingston High School are open all this week. Any question students may have regarding schedules, courses, etc. should be decided this week, prior to the opening of school on Tuesday.

Parents should feel free to call the Myron J. Michael School, telephone 4008, or the Guidance Department in the Kingston High School, telephone 1970, or the superintendent of schools, telephone 491, if they have questions about the opening of schools, it was announced.

Vaughn Denies Income Tax, Black Market Fix; Says F.B.I. Cleared Him

Everything's Okay

Major Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, signals that everything's okay as he testifies before the Senate subcommittee investigating "five per center" activity. Vaughan denied selling his influence, but said he handled around $5,000 in Democratic campaign contributions from people for whom he performed White House favors. (NEA Telephoto)

Vote Expected Tonight On 75-Cent Wage Figure

Lucas Will Confer With Truman and GOP on Recess

Republicans Are Happy Over Ending Session; Reciprocal Trade Is Big Holdup

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Senate was talking today of adjournment—not right away, but pretty soon.

Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) told newsmen he wanted to discuss the situation with President Truman today. Then, sometime next week, he may sit down with Republican leaders and try to line up an end-of-session program.

Delighted G.O.P. senators, who have been pressing for adjournment for weeks, promised their complete cooperation.

This session of Congress is now in its ninth month. The House, with most of its work out of the way, is on vacation. The Senate, which refused to okay the House holiday, is still grinding away at the legislative mill.

Lucas said he planned to sound out Mr. Truman on a suggestion that some stop-gap extension of the reciprocal trade agreements program be worked out. He told

New Bill Would Raise Minimum Pay From 40 Cents to 75 an Hour

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—After taking one setback, Senate leaders pressed confidently today for a vote by nightfall on a bill putting a 75-cents-an-hour floor under wages.

Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois called the Senate into session an hour earlier than usual (10 a. m., E.S.T.) in an effort to complete the action.

The present Fair Labor Standards Act sets a minimum wage for covered workers of 40 cents an hour. The bill before the Senate, like one already passed by the House, would hike this to 75 cents.

Several amendments had to be acted on before the Senate could finish with the bill.

The major fight was expected over a proposal by Senator Ellender (D-La.) to get the minimum at 65 cents an hour until the end of 1950, then gear it to living costs as measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. It couldn't go below 55 cents or above 75.

Ellender told a reporter he was hopeful of winning approval for his amendment, but Senator Pepper (D-Pa.) leading the fight for the administration, predicted its defeat.

The administration took a lick

Harlemites Cheer as Robeson Announces Peekskill Return

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—Paul Robeson, declaring that "from now on we take the offensive," vows he'll return to Peekskill, N. Y., where a riot broke up his scheduled concert Saturday night.

The negro singer spoke last night to a crowd of 3,000 cheering supporters at a Harlem rally protesting the riot, which started after anti-Communist groups staged an anti-Communist rally outside the concert grove.

"I want to warn the Legion," the singer declared, "that I have been to Memphis, Tenn., and Florida, and I'll be in Peekskill again."

Robeson referred to attendance at last night's rally—which included 1,000 persons standing outside the doors, and said "they've got their answer here tonight. I don't see any Legion here tonight."

"We'll have our meetings and our concerts all over the United States. The sure way to get police protection is to make it clear we will protect ourselves."

Robeson and his supporters have charged Westchester county officials with laxity in not providing police protection at the riot scene in a wooded picnic grove outside Peekskill.

Law officials of the county are investigating the disturbance on orders from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

City Councilman Benjamin Davis, a negro, and one of the Communist leaders now on trial for conspiracy to advocate overthrowing the government, said at the meeting:

"If advocating defeat of this Fascist violence is overthrowing the government, then, by God, the government is going to be overthrown."

At the meeting, attendants passed out copies of a Civil Rights Congress "newsletter" and other reading matter, including the Communist newspaper, The Daily Worker.

The newsletter called on President Truman to act "in this outrage" and demanded that Gov. Dewey remove District Attorney George M. Faneili, of Westchester, from office.

The Civil Rights Congress, one of the sponsors of the Peekskill concert, is listed as a subversive organization by the Justice Department.

Robeson did not reach the riot scene Saturday night. He was intercepted by friends who took him away.

Senator McCarthy Feels General Got No Profit Out of His Various Intercessions

Admits He Helped

Never Heard of Charge Involving More Grain for Liquor

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—Major Gen. Harry H. Vaughan told senators today the F.B.I. once looked into—and found groundless—a charge that he accepted a $10,000 bribe to "fix" an income tax case.

The big, bluff White House military aide also acknowledged that he got a Democratic campaign contribution last fall from a lawyer who had come to him earlier seeking a pardon for a man convicted of black market liquor deals. But Vaughan insisted there was no connection between those events and the parole given to the convicted man.

Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) fired the questions about the two incidents. It was a somewhat stormy session during which McCarthy declared he was withdrawing a statement he made yesterday.

At that time, McCarthy said he had the feeling all along—and still felt—that Vaughan did not profit personally from any of his various intercessions with the government.

"I am going to ask that the last half of that statement be stricken from the record," McCarthy said today, "that part in which I said that still was my opinion."

Vaughan identified the lawyer in the parol case as William H. Nebbett and described him as a law partner of the late Senator William C. Clegg. McCarthy said the convicted liquor black marketer was Robert Gould of Cincinnati.

Just a Few Hundred
As for the campaign contribution, Vaughan said "I don't think it could have been over a couple of hundred dollars."

When McCarthy suggested there might be some link between the contribution and Gould's parole, Vaughan said:

"I don't think that had a thing to do with the matter."

Concerning Nebbett's visit to him in connection with the Gould case, Vaughan said he referred Nebbett to the Justice Department.

Vaughan said the F.B.I. investigation of the report of a "fix" in an income tax case came about as the result of a "request of the member of the press" to the F.B.I.

He never did identify this member of the press.

But Col. C. J. Mara, assistant White House military aide, later said that for some time before the investigation a "vicious campaign" had been carried on against Vaughan by columnist Drew Pearson.

Mara was put in the witness chair and testified that he had talked with the F.B.I. about it and was informed that Vaughan was "completely exonerated."

Mara on Grain
Later, Mara said the man he talked with was Peyton Ford, assistant attorney general. He said Ford had the F.B.I. files brought in but that he (Mara) did not see them.

McCarthy kept pounding away with questions as to whether there had not been an F.B.I. investigation of charges that Vaughan had exerted his influence in an effort to get more grain for liquor companies when grain was short and rationed.

Both Vaughan and Mara insisted they never heard of any such investigation.

As to the income tax case, Vaughan said F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover informed him he had been "accused of accepting a bribe for a promise to fix an income tax case."

For the second straight day, Vaughan was in the witness chair of the Senate investigations subcommittee looking into the question of whether there has been improper influence in the letting of government contracts.

Vaughan, the President's military aide, acknowledged yesterday that he had aided business friends in dealings with the government, but declared he never did anything improper or accepted any fee or gift for his services.

THE JITNEY

A news note said the Ohio attorney-general has been asked for an official definition of a jitney. The term, it seems, was used in writing a law regulating the employment of women. It is one which might be expected to send most members of the current generation to their dictionaries. What is a jitney?

The omnipresent authority Webster, confessing it knows not why, says that a jitney, for one thing, is a five-cent piece. The term was unknown to dictionaries at the turn of the century. It was in that period, however, that it was the breezy title of the ever-popular nickel. But that is only the beginning of the story.

While the automobile was hardly out of its infancy, here and there an enterprising soul had one, and little else but time, took up the habit of cruising along the routes of the streetcars which then were the common form of city transportation, picking up passengers who were too impatient to wait for the trolley. They charged each passenger a jitney as his fare, and in no time at all the word had a new meaning, for it followed quite naturally that it should be applied to the vehicle.

Oldsters need but close one eye to see the jitney still, as it clattered up to a downtown street corner to pause briefly while the driver scanned the faces of the waiting commuters, in search of a customer. Usually it was an open flyover, not many generations removed from the surrey with the fringe on top. Perhaps a venturesome one handed over his nickel and got aboard, and the jitney chugged off to the next corner. And so the bus was born.

SENATORIAL BLUNDER

A weakness of the Senate, resulting from its rigid seniority rules, has lately been shown again by the experience of John Foster Dulles, the new Republican member from New York. His thorough knowledge of international affairs, which caused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to choose him as his adviser in his two presidential campaigns, makes him an ideal candidate for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Is Dulles put where he is superbly fitted? No, there is no vacancy on that committee. The seniority rule bars him in favor of other senators who got to the Senate first and therefore outrank any newcomer, no matter how well qualified. The same rule keeps Dulles off the important Appropriations Committee. Instead, he is assigned to the insignificant Committee on the District of Columbia.

The Senate criticizes other parts of the government very freely. It should look at the beam in its own eye.

REWARD FOR MOTHERS

A report from Tel Aviv tells of the Israeli government's decision to grant a bonus equivalent to $300 to every mother at the birth of her tenth child.

Israel, far from worrying about high birth-rate, a problem which troubles most Oriental countries, apparently wishes to increase its population and to make large families popular. The bonus system has been tried in other nations, including Canada, with some degree of success.

Many mothers, physically and financially burdened by large families, would doubtless prefer any government subsidy to be granted at the birth of each child. Families of ten or more are less common than they once were.

DEFENSE OF THE KLAN

That the Ku Klux Klan was not responsible for the violence which accompanied its presence was constantly insisted on by the late Dr. Samuel Green, imperial wizard of the Associated Klans of Georgia. He always maintained that hoodlums took advantage of the existence of this masked secret order, and indulged in private lawlessness of their own.

Quite possibly true, this defense is an argument against rather than for a masked group

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

MORE ON MRS. McCULLOUGH

The more I think of the case of Hester McCullough, the more I realize that there is a pattern in these things. Hester McCullough complained to the Greenwich Community Concert Association that when she subscribed to their series of concerts, she did not know that they would put on shows in which there would be those who belonged to organizations (that the Attorney General of the United States and the House Committee on Un-American Activities had declared to be subversive. Particularly she complained against Larry Adler, a harmonica player, and Paul Draper, a dancer, who work as a team and interlard their stuff with comment. She kicked up a fuss and got herself into a libel suit for $100,000 each. These lawyers, Kenneth Bradley, formerly Republican national committeeman, attached her home and her bank account and therefore she has been much embarrassed.

The so-called conservatives and capitalists are individualists and they rarely, if ever, stand together. For instance, I received a notice that "Plain Talk," one of the better magazines to be published in this country, plans to suspend operations in September because it has no money. This fine publication, which has made known some of the most valuable and usually suppressed data, has been edited by Isaac Don Levine and its angel has been Alfred Kohlberg, who spent as much on it as possible, to give it a start.

The assumption was that when the conservatives would see what could be done by earnest and competent journalists, it would attract circulation, advertising, financial support, stock-ownership, something. I can say that there were lots of meetings and lots of talk but very little money. The trouble is that those conservatives depend too much on their own bright ideas, which often are of little real value even in their own interest. They often speak a language which is not of this generation and they refuse to risk stating what may put them out on a limb.

They do not mind someone else doing it for them but they shy away from the kind of support which denotes solidarity among those who are like-minded. I recall once speaking to those in charge of a great corporation about certain advertising in the socialist but violently anti-Communist "New Leader." This corporation advertises in about every publication in the country. Most of its advertising is what is known as institutional or good-will advertising. Some of it appears in magazines that have little circulation and that editorially oppose everything this corporation stands for. Yet I could not get them interested in "The New Leader."

That publication did not fit into their classifications. It was like another corporation that advertised in about every kind of newspaper, but not the Negro press, because again the Negro press was classified as dailies of limited circulation but not as foreign language newspapers. Then these people wonder why they are accused of discrimination and why even those who believe, as they do, in conservative, capitalist principles are amazed at the stuffiness of these people.

It is the same on the radio. The conservative commentators nearly all have sponsor troubles. Businessmen love what they say, but they are willing to get the advantages of having a voice on the air that speaks what they also believe, but they fear the consequences of any responsibility for keeping that voice on radio, then they blame the networks for putting on radicals, whom their advertising agencies do not fear to sponsor because it looks good to be heard.

Well, Mrs. McCullough may have a tough time of it but she can take it because she is a brave woman who loves her country. But she must, in the still of the night, ask why in her fight she is left to shoulder it alone. And there really is no answer. Those who want to fight for American principles must recognize that they have to stand alone, for one of our characteristics is that each person freely functions according to his conscience, no matter who applauds or who hisses. The fight for America will go on in spite of those who fear it. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

HELPING GRIEF STRICKEN AND DEPRESSED

There is nothing more depressing than seeing a loved one suffering great grief and depression from which he or she cannot be aroused, despite all the efforts of the family physician and others. Sometimes the depression occurs in a woman during the change of life but fortunately the treatment now in general use—ovary extract—helps the great majority of these menopause cases. After neurologists, who treat defective structures of the brain, and psychiatrists who treat behavior problems—obsessions, illusions, double personality—fail to win response in cases of deep depression and grief, the operation known as lobotomy is now often performed. In this operation the nerves supplying certain parts of the brain are cut. The fact that lobotomy brought relief from grief and depression was all that was expected because to see the loved one happy again made the operation worth while. However, as mentioned in former articles, it was found that while operation gave relief, the patient became childlike and felt no responsibility in life. Later it was found that some cases improved mentally, some even going back to their former occupations and others, however, unable to return home and look after themselves.

The latest forward step in the treatment of grief stricken patients is special care in hospital after the operation has been performed. Instead of sending these cases home, Dr. J. B. Tompkins, in "American Journal of Psychiatry," reviews observations on 36 patients who received individual care and psychiatric (mental) direction in hospital. Each patient was carefully watched and his reactions to various circumstances studied so that his activities were directed to encouraging his good habits. Of the entire 36 cases carefully studied and guided all but 2 have been helped and half of the group are able to live a fairly normal life at home. While none of these cases can be said to have no trace of their former illness, many have made an adjustment to life which pleases both patients and the families.

Neurosis—believing you have a physical ailment when none exists—is becoming increasingly common. Send today for Dr. Barton's informative booklet on this subject entitled "Neurosis." To obtain it just send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 95, Station G, New York 19, N. Careful Now, Men!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—The Iranian Government is attempting a new backstage squeeze for a big U. S. handout.

It is a demand for a $250,000,000 World Bank loan.

The proposal was sprung by A. H. Ehteshaji, head of the Iranian State Bank and a governor of the World Bank. He is due here next month for a meeting of bank governors.

Meanwhile, Ehteshaji is trying to put on the heat in Teheran. He has told U. S. officials there that Iran is entitled to the same kind of monetary and military aid the U. S. is giving Turkey and Greece.

He concluded one conversation with the haughty observation that if such assistance is not forthcoming "the U. S. can go to hell."

Actually, a large flow of U. S. dollars is pouring into Iran. American oil interests are paying out millions monthly, and the U. S. Government is spending large sums. It has just completed a $500,000 engineering survey for Iran.

Strained Relations

Behind-the-scenes, diplomatic relations between the U. S. and Iran are at the lowest ebb since the '20's, when the State Department deported a member of the Iranian legation for smuggling opium.

Curious aspect of the current strained relations is that Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi is making a state visit to Washington this fall. His mother and several other members of the U. S. family already are in the U. S. Authorities are at loss as to the reason for Iranian gruffness.

Iran put on a half last month at the turn-down of an opium scheme.

Famine conditions exist in Azerbaijan, northwest Iranian province. Despite large oil royalties, Iran asked the U. S. for 200,000 tons of free grain. When that was refused, Iran proposed to swap opium for the wheat.

U. S. Narcotics Commissioner Harry Anslinger vehemently objected.

He cited the fact that Iran is the most flagrant exporter of illegal opium in the world, and has persistently defied United Nations attempts to curb this vicious traffic. Also, that due to these notorious violations, the U. S. ceased buying medicinal opium from Iran. Anslinger's forthright protests blocked the swap scheme.

Pickets

Rep. Arthur Klein, D. N. Y., denounced the District of Columbia corporation counsel for information about local picketing laws.

"This is the first time in five years we have had a query about that," was the answer. "The last time a member of Congress called us on this subject it was the late Senator Bilbo of Mississippi."

"What did he want to know?" asked Klein.

"He called early one morning and said, 'there's a bunch of pickets outside my apartment. Is it legal for me to shoot them?'"

We explained that in Washington pickets could not be molested as long as they kept moving and did not obstruct traffic. Bilbo replied, in that case, I guess I can't shoot them, and hung up."

Public Housing Pal

During the bitter House battle over the President's low-cost public housing bill, one of the most ardent foes was Rep. Gene Cox, D., Ga. At one point, his trigger-tongue flared to where he struck Rep. Adolph Sabath, aged dean of the chamber.

But Cox sang another tune the other day at the public housing administration.

Officials of Albany, Ga., his home town, appeared at P.H.A. to sign up for a housing project under the new act. Albany is the first small town to get such a development. And right up in front to get his picture and name in the papers was Cox—who had so violently fought the legislation.

Note—Since the enactment of the measure, P.H.A. has been flooded with applications for low-cost housing projects, many of them from the home towns of congressmen and senators who tried to kill the bill.

'Five-Percenters'

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer's announcement that his field offices will provide businessmen with information on government contracts free of charge is causing no concern to "5-per-centers."

Reason is, the intricacies of government procurement are so complex that only an insider can make any headway against them. All big corporations have their own business representatives in Washington and hundreds of other centers employ part-time agents. Most of them are legitimate contact men who know their way around and make no claims to inside influence.

All the publicity given "5-per-centers" has boomed their business greatly in recent weeks.

Shorts

Members of Congress who want to hit the lecture trail can now do so through a new speakers' bureau organized in Washington to handle exclusively congressional clients. Sen. Edward L. Leahy, D. R. I., appointed to fill the seat formerly held by Attorney General Howard McGrath, is rated one of the ablest tax experts in the country.

Capital politicians are reading with relish advance copies of Joseph L. Dinwiddie's hilarious "The Purple Shamrock," a plain-talking biography of Boston's colorful Mayor James Curley. The book goes on sale September 7. (Copyright, 1949, Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Cancellation of Important Scientific Polar Expedition Reflects Petty Decisions

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 31—Something of a mystery seems to have developed out of the cancellation of the U. S. Navy expedition to Antarctica.

The whole expedition was to have cost the navy about $2,500,000, and there already has been spent about $1,000,000.

The ships which were to have been used have to be kept in operation somewhere in the normal course, so that the total extra expense for a four-month visit to the Antarctic would have been relatively small.

The objective of such an expedition, however, is of considerable importance. Thus there is some reason to believe that uranium deposits are to be found in the vast continent in and around the South Pole—a land area estimated to be as large as the United States and Canada together.

Conflicting claims to the area have been put up by various nations, including Soviet Russia. But the United States has done more exploration there than any other country. Hitherto in world history the first explorers who landed in an arctic have laid claim to the surrounding regions in the name of their own country. Rear Adm. Richard Byrd has made the main expeditions to the South Pole area and mapped a huge part of the Antarctic continent and claimed it in behalf of the United States.

While the next expedition, which was to have started in November of this year, was to have been accompanied by Admiral Byrd, it was in no sense his own expedition. It was an official navy affair. Byrd, however, has been spread recently that the Truman administration, desiring to punish Senator Byrd, has thwarted the ambition of his brother to make a final expedition into the area he knows so well.

This is hotly denied in administration quarters. In fact, it is said that Secretary of Defense Johnson recently assured Senator Byrd in person that he had nothing to do with the decision. Under Secretary Kimball of the Navy Department has taken full responsibility for the action in canceling the expedition and he has insisted that nobody else had anything to do with that step. One rumor is that the whole action grew out of the desire of overzealous subordinates to do something they thought would be pleasing to President Truman.

Another explanation heard is that at a time when the Department of Defense was ordering the dismissal of 135,000 civilians, it had to give an impression of being economical in every detail. This hardly seems persuasive, for the amount to be spent is far smaller than might be expended, for instance, in a good-will tour or any of the other normal or routine operations of the navy in which the same kind of ships might be involved.

Still another report is that the navy expedition planned to use an aircraft carrier for the exploration and that it was felt this might lead to too much publicity for the navy's carrier-aircraft operations and that at this time it might be considered inadvisable to call so much attention to the navy's carrier operations.

None of these explanations sounds convincing. They sound more like excuses or even guesses as to what was behind the cancellation. Clearly the armed services need every bit of experience they can possibly get concerning conditions that exist in the Polar areas, especially since it is assumed that, in the event of a war with Russia, the armed services would be operating in weather very much the same as is to be found in and around the South Pole.

Finally, it is difficult to understand why the expedition was canceled when it is realized that the army and the air force, as well as the navy, were to have participated in the operations with scientific personnel from each of the three services.

Some explanation for the postponement would normally have been made, but in these times the action taken becomes a mystery which merely leads to surprises and gossip that give the public a false impression of government important decisions of defense policy inside the armed services.

The colorful bridge player, Tobias Stone, was in New York recently with his bride, the former Dale Baker, of Hollywood, Calif.

They went there to spend their honeymoon, and when do you suppose Mr. Stone was spending most of it?—at the bridge clubs.

Stone tells everybody that he is the greatest player in the world. Then he sits down at the bridge table and most of the time his bidding and play convince everybody that he is.

I want to assure you that today's hand is not a cooked-up one, but was played at the Mayfair Bridge Club in New York city. Stone, sitting South, trumped the opening lead of the king of clubs with the three of diamonds. He next played the ace of diamonds on which the queen dropped. I am sure that now most players would lead the ace of spades, and down would go the contract as East would get the contract as East would trump and return a diamond.

Stone thought for a long time about the possibility of any combination of cards which would prevent him from making his contract. Believe it or not he reasoned correctly. If West held the six of spades, he could lose his contract by playing the ace of spades. So he led the three of spades. West won with the nine and returned a spade, but this was trumped in dummy with the jack of diamonds. The eight of diamonds was led and when East played low, Tobias played the nine spot. He then picked up East's last trump and the hand was made.

I asked Mr. Stone why his opponents did not bid six clubs, which could be made. His reply was, "They were afraid of my two bid."

Show this hand to your friends and see if they will make the right play, even though they can see all four hands.

Importer Dies

The design of the White House is said to have been modeled on that of the Duke of Leinster's palace in Dublin.

So They Say...

The thing that puts us in such good shape... is the fact that practically all of our adult Americans... are acutely conscious of what is going on in our economy and are demanding corrective action before any temporary dislocation turns into panic or depression.

—Sen. Francis J. Myers (D.) of Pennsylvania.

So long as the danger of aggression exists, it is necessary to think in terms of the forces required to prevent it.

—President Truman.

Parents must accept the major responsibility for the soaring rate of traffic deaths and accidents among drivers under 25 of age, which totaled 7500 killed and 275,000 injured in 1947.

—James S. Kemper, chairman, Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company.

The economy is generally sound. It is almost impossible to have a depression with one condition—if people get scared, particularly if businessmen get scared, anything can happen.

—Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

If labor is the hands and management the head of Hawaii's economic life, ocean-going transportation is the jugular vein. If that is cut, both hands and head are sure to perish.

—Gov. Ingram Stahlback of the Territory of Hawaii.

A week ago, Mrs. Rice filed suit for divorce from her fourth husband, Henry Warren Dumont, Jr., 23, radio writer and producer, charging cruelty.

Dodging Burmese Rebels Is Profitable to Vet Fliers

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Burmese civil war is proving a boon to former U. S. Army and Navy fliers here.

These Americans are doing a good business chartering their aircraft to the Burmese government for transport of soldiers, supplies and civil servants who otherwise would be grounded because of disrupted surface communications.

The young businessmen earn their money, though, dodging rebel bullets. Some of them have been captured (temporarily) by outlaws unexpectedly occupying airstrips in the hinterland after plane takeoffs from Rangoon.

In Burma there is no radio communication between towns or skyriding planes and their destination point. This absence of radio produces another hazard for the U. S. pilots—blind flying in a lashing monsoon.

Some of the Americans, exhume fliers, claim flying without radio during the monsoon is much more hazardous than crossing the hump between India and China.

"Toughest flying in the world,"

is the way they put it.

Among the latest additions to the score of American airmen crossing the Burmese skies are

28-year-old Captain Alfred

R. Gibson of Indian Lake, Ohio, and J. F. Shoemaker of New York.

With their partner Av Haw, millionaire son of the Chinese business tycoon Au Boon Haw,

Gibson and Shoemaker brought in Air Carriers Ltd. from Hong Kong on charter to the Burmese government.

They were given a plush assignment. Their C-16 is used exclusively by Kachin President Sinsu Duwa Sinsu Nawing for flights to his remote territory in the north of Burma where he is recruiting more Kachin soldiers to join the Burmese army.

Chief pilot of Air Carriers is Captain R. A. Stratford of Savannah, Ga., with Barney Kulshof of Iowa as his co-pilot. An Australian, George Birmingham, is the radio operator.

The Gibson-Shoemaker outfit hopes to extend its service by bringing in three more planes. Their four-months-old operation so far has been fairly uneventful. In that they are more fortunate than Captain Ladd Moore of Marshall, Texas, 34-year-old director of operations for Indonesia Airways. Moore, whose aircraft is under charter to the Burmese war office for carrying troops and ammunition, has been hit three times while flying over rebel territory.

He said his narrowest escape came when rebels occupying the north Burma army base Maiktila hit his ammunition-laden plane. "Actually," he said, "I was due to land the stuff at Maiktila, which was unable to warn Rangoon of the rebel attack. It only the rebels had held their fire, they would have captured me, my plane and the ammunition."

Tent Gamblers Are Raided in Wooded
Section of Nassau

Mineola, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—A raid on a tent-sheltered dice table, situated deep in a wooded area in a wealthy section of Nassau county on Long Island, has resulted in the arrest of 29 persons.

Eight were charged here today with operating a gambling game, and one of them, Joseph De Georgia, 47, of New York city, also was accused of paying bribes to Nassau county policemen.

The 21 others, named as players at the isolated dice-playing spot, were charged with disorderly conduct.

District Attorney Frank A. Gulotta said the gambling operation had been in progress since August 15. He said players were brought to the spot in four cars that shuttled daily between the woods and New York city.

Twenty-five uniformed policemen and 10 plain clothes investigators yesterday swooped in on the secluded spot, located near fashionable North Hills. Police said $2,500 on the dice table was seized.

Gulotta said police became aware of the operation about two weeks ago when De Georgia offered to "make things right" with a policeman who investigated after noting the shutting service.

The officer, who reported the attempted bribe to his superiors, was told to "play along with De Georgia," the district attorney said. Six other policemen, also approached by De Georgia and offered bribes, worked on the case to gather information prior to the raid, Gulotta said.

None know the others were working on the case, he said. Bribe money allegedly paid them was turned over to Gulotta as evidence.

Police said three lookouts were arrested as the raiding squad closed in on the dice game.

and said notice of the death had never been published. Miller had a fabulous career. Secret Service agents said an occasional counterfeit $20, $50 or $100 bill, known as "Count Lustig money," still turns up.

Rumors Spread
About Red Troops
Near Slav Border

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 31 (AP)—Spreading rumors of Soviet army troop concentrations near Yugoslavia's frontier attended speculation today over the new Russian denunciation of Premier Marshal Tito.

(Diplomatic officials in London said British and U. S. restrictions on the sales of military equipment to Yugoslavia may be eased to bolster Tito's regime.)

Officially there was no confirmation of troop movements nor of talk that Yugoslavia may seek United Nations intervention in her blossoming dispute with Russia.

But it should be emphasized that the Yugoslav themselves are showing no concern over the possibility that the propaganda and economic struggle between this country and her Communist neighbors will turn into a shooting war.

There was no immediate Yugoslav response to the Soviet note, announced yesterday, blasting the Tito government as an ally of the western powers.

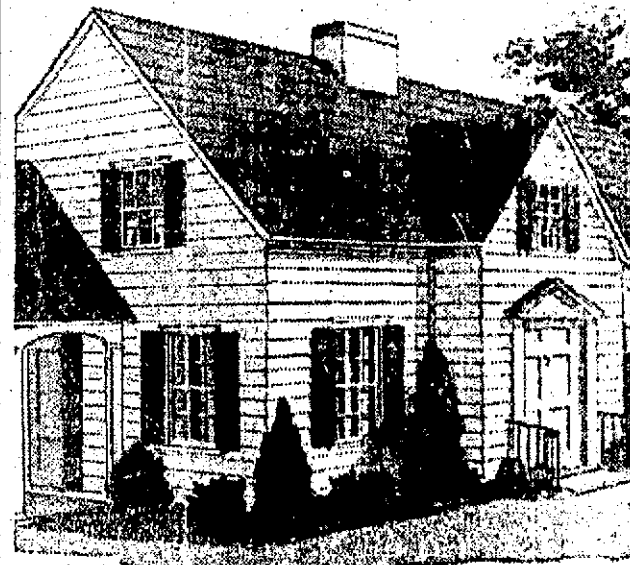

By contrast, the United States embassy was taking things calmly and showing scant signs of anticipating a showdown now in the Yugoslav-Russian dispute. While Tito's troops remain alert, there was little public sign they are expecting war.

Detroit, Aug. 31 (AP)—After 26 years, Mrs. Sophie Nichols has decided that, minus a husband, a marriage isn't a marriage. Yesterday the former Detroit school teacher officially annulled herself of Walter Nichols, who hasn't been heard from since he bolted their wedding reception December 23, 1923. She told Circuit Judge Chester P. O'Hara: Nichols left after picking up the wedding presents and the contents of ladies' pocketbooks while the others feasted. It was the climax to a whirlwind courtship. Judge O'Hara agreed that it sounded pretty much like abandonment and annulled the marriage. "I stayed married because I didn't want to be fooled twice," Mrs. Nichols said.

Loses Wife Over Job

Tokyo, Aug. 31 (AP)—Yasuo Kobayashi, 27, got the only job he could find—walking around town carrying a billboard. That upset his wife, Katsuko, 28. This was no job for the son of a former Japanese Army lieutenant general, she said—and left him. Yasuo added to his sign this advertisement of his own: "Bright and cheerful wife wanted. Would-be groom 27 years old." Eight candidates applied. Trudging his rounds today, Yasuo said if Kat-suko did not return by the end of October he would marry one of the eight.

BY SAM DAWSON

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—For the first time since last November the wheels in America's mills and factories are turning faster.

After eight steady months of falling output, the industrial pace has quickened in August, the Federal Reserve Board says today.

Flanking this pleasant news are reports of increasing steel production, record auto output, reviving department store sales in New York city, and return of workers to refrigerator plants where a spurt in orders is boosting output.

The August revival should bring industrial production back to about the rate of June, the Federal Reserve Board says. The sharp drop in July was chalked up largely to a postwar development the board hasn't yet taken into account when adjusting its index to seasonal factors—the spread of the vacation habit through industry.

Many factories were closed down part of the time in July for vacations. When the board set up its industrial production index, a number of years ago, it made allowance for many seasonal variations, but the vacation practice was so little observed before the war in heavy industry that it was not taken into consideration in the index.

As a result, the index took a steep drop this summer. It fell 1.69 in June to 102 in July. The index, using the 1935-39 average as 100, reached its peak last November at 135, and then started skidding.

The other villain in July, along with vacations, was the plunge in steel production. The steel mills operated at 82 per cent of capacity during June, but dropped to an average of 71 per cent of capacity during July.

Here, too, the board notes happy days in August, reporting steel output back to an average of 83 per cent of capacity. The gains increased as the month went along. The American Iron and Steel Institute estimates that this final week will find the mills running at 86.3 per cent of capacity, their best rate since mid-June.

How much of this is due to a real business pick-up and how much to customers stocking up in fear of a steel strike next month, no one will say for sure.

Price cuts and hot weather brought homeowners into the appliance stores in sufficient quantity to cut refrigerator inventories, and output in the plants is being stepped up again. The National Appliance and Radio Dealers' Association is even talking about the short supply of the cooling boxes. It says they'll be scarce until October, when production will have caught up again. Distributors say that two of the companies are allocating refrigerators to them again.

New York department stores report sales last week were six per cent above the like week in 1948. It has been 20 weeks since they could report any gain over the previous year. They credit that old stand-by, the weather. Cooler days led shoppers to desert the electric fans at home and trudge through store aisles.

July vacations are credited by the Department of Commerce with causing a six per cent drop in the month's sales by all manufacturing companies, to $15 billion from $16½ billion in June. A similar drop was noted at the same time last year. Most affected were sales by iron and steel, and the electrical machinery industries.

Inventories also dropped in value by a half billion dollars. The department puts manufacturers' inventories at just under $421 billion in July. This was the fifth straight month of declining inventories. Machinery companies had the biggest drop in July, but the durable goods industries in general were affected.

The department makes no guess as to the trend in August, but many businessmen expect that this month's figures will show that sales of manufacturing companies picked up this month, along with their production schedules.

TOO NEAR A MISS—Bus driver Harry Hassen was too shocked and exhausted to look at what happened when his Bayonne, N. J., bus struck a bicycle ridden by 13-year-old Vincent Modafert. Hassen, seen through the bus window, buried his face in his hands. But a hospital check-up showed the bike rider, suffered only minor cuts and shock in the near-tragic accident.

Will Streamline Rent Control Setup

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—Housing Expediter Tighe Woods will pay a call on budget officials next week to decide how much money he can spend on rent control. Then he will start cutting controls back.

Officials emphasized, however, that where rent ceilings are lifted care will be taken to protect tenants against eviction and rent overcharges.

The housing agency is now making broad surveys to find out where controls can be raised with the least possible hardship. Woods, now on vacation, will tie this information in with budget data in deciding where to decontrol. Meanwhile, to keep such action at a minimum, the expediter's office has started a general economy drive intended, one official said, to "streamline control operations" all along the line. Discharge notices already have gone out to 619 employees, mostly in national rent control offices. Woods has said that a Congressional cut in funds will result in decontrol for one-third of the areas now covered. Housing officials said he will try nevertheless to make the available money go as far as possible.

2 More Districts Postpone School Because of Polio

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—The total of polio cases in the state neared 2,600 today and two more Washington county school boards postponed opening of schools in their districts.

The decision of the Fort Edward and Hartford Central School authorities last night brought to four the number of Washington county districts that have delayed resumption of classes.

The Fort Edward opening was postponed indefinitely. The start of classes at Hartford Central school was put off until at least Sept. 12. The schools had been scheduled to open Sept. 6.

The board of education at Hudson Falls announced last week the indefinite postponement of school openings there. At Fort Ann, the start of classes has been delayed until at least Sept. 12. The state's death toll, as of yesterday, stood at 136 for the year. The state health department listed 2,591 cases. These totals included eight deaths and 110 new cases reported yesterday. New York city had accounted for most of the deaths—125—and 1,498 cases. Erie county had reported 175 cases, the highest outside of New York city. Counties outside of New York city had reported 31 deaths and 1,093 cases.

U. S., Britain May Ease Way of Sale Of Arms to Slavs

London, Aug. 31 (AP)—Restrictions on the sale of military equipment to Yugoslavia may be eased shortly by the U. S. and Britain, according to diplomatic officials.

They said yesterday a decision in the matter is expected when Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin meets with Secretary of State Dean Acheson in Washington soon. British officials have been studying how they can quietly support Premier Marshal Tito's government in its quarrel with Russia and her satellites, the informants said.

This outlook for support for Tito comes at the time of Russia's latest blast against Tito. In a note yesterday the Russians accused the Yugoslav leader and his lieutenants of being deserters, double-dealers and stooges of "western masters."

One way the western powers could back up Tito's feud with Russia would be the shipment of needed arms to Yugoslavia. The shipment of such supplies to Yugoslavia has been halted by the countries of the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform).

Yugoslavia, it is believed, has the western powers for vehicles, light armor and small arms.

Financial and Commercial

By WILLIAM D. HORGAN

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—Small-scale and selective buying kept the stock market on a steady footing today.

Gains exceeded losses by a slim margin. Most price changes were too minor, though, to be of much significance. A considerable number of leading issues remained at Tuesday's closing levels.

Business was even slower than yesterday when turnover faded away to a two-month low.

High-priced Coca-Cola was one of the few stocks to step out of the narrow price pattern the issue dropped 5 1/2 points at one time but the loss was later pared. The stock dropped 2 points Tuesday following a jump of 10 1/2 points on Monday.

Timken-Detroit Axle suggested more than a point in the wake of news that the usual 50-cent dividend had been cut in half.

Barnsdall Oil, which frequently takes wide swings, moved to a new 1949 peak with a gain of around 1/2 point.

Pennsylvania R. R. 9

Vote Expected . . .

ing last night when the Senate adopted, 50 to 23, an amendment offered by Senator Holland (D.-Pa.) and others which would take about 200,000 workers out from under the law.

Holland insisted that his amendment made no changes not intended by Congress when it wrote the wage and hour law a decade ago.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) agreed. He said the amendment would exclude some workers from coverage only because administrators of the law had "steadily encroached" on the exemptions originally intended.

Under the amendment, retail and service establishments would be exempted from the wage-hour law under most conditions if more than 50 per cent of their annual volume of sales were made within the state where they are located.

Holland said the amendment would clear away doubts of "tens of thousands" of small businessmen who are uncertain whether the law now applies to them. As it is, he said, they are "terribly apprehensive."

Earlier the Senate had voted without objection to exempt newsmen from provisions of the law as well as to pay rates.

Chairman Elbert Thomas (D.-Utah) of the Senate Labor Committee said in supporting this amendment that the "whole theory of child-labor legislation was to stop the exploitation of children."

"Everyone knows that this ordinary newsmen is not exploited labor in any sense at all."

Luens promised senators a week's rest if they completed action on the wage bill by tonight.

Lucas Will Confer

reporters this could shorten the session 10 days or two weeks.

The Lucas program now calls for a one-week vacation following action on a bill raising minimum hourly wages from 40 to 75 cents.

The controversial question of revising the President's authority to make tariff-cutting trade agreements with other nations would then be the pending Senate business.

Both Democrats and Republicans agree that Lucas faces a tough task in lining up any "must" list of legislation.

He named half a dozen measures yesterday, including the trade pact program, the European rearmament bill, liberalization of the Displaced Persons Act, farm legislation and a series of bills boosting pay of government officials and employees.

Meanwhile, Rep. Sabath (D.-Ill.) came from a meeting with Mr. Truman yesterday with a different list.

It called for action to outlaw racial and other discrimination in employment—almost a sure bet to run into a filibuster in the Senate; a $150,000,000 Korean recovery program; a $100,000,000 public works planning program; expanded social security benefits and a number of other measures.

FOR LEG

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

This is the story of Zipper Joe as it's being told in the better horse rooms of New York and New Jersey....

Joe is a bookie (an ambulatory fungus that sprouts around race tracks, and Broadway calls him "The Zipper" because of the sliding attachment on his pants pocket which makes it impossible to remove the contents without benefit of an acetylene torch). Three weeks ago, the Zip got into his 1938 convertible and set out for the races at Saratoga, but a half hour north of Troy his car collided with an oak, and when he finally struggled back to consciousness he found himself ensconced in a four-poster bed which smelled faintly of lavender and old iodine.

"My name is Dr. Lanning," said a gent who was looking down into his face. "Your leg is swollen up to the knee, and you'll have to lay here in my home for a spell while I give you some penicillin shots. Lucky we have an extra room."

Well, it didn't take the Zipper more than five minutes to find out that the doc and his wife knew more about court-plaster than they did about horses. And Mrs. Lanning was all clicks and sympathy when he told her his hobby was guessing which horse would win—just for fun, of course. At his suggestion, she arranged to have the bus driver drop off a racing form and scratch sheet every morning, and to humor him even agreed to check off the Saratoga results as they came over the radio downstairs. And when he informed her that he operated a big marmalade factory in New York, she not only let him sample her own, but also had a telephone extension plugged into his bedroom so he could keep in touch with his "clients."

Well, it took only a few phone calls for the Zipper to spread it around Times Square that he had a new place of business, and by the end of the second day everything was under control. And it stayed that way until the morning of the fourth day when a call came through from an old customer named Big Nick who ran one of those Jersey garages in which there aren't any cars.

"Two thousand to win on Merry Soul in the seventh," said Nick. "Can't handle it," said the Zipper. "Merry Soul is ten-to-one and I dunno if I can lay it off."

(For the benefit of the decent, "laying off" means dividing a bet with a number of other bookies, thereby minimizing a possible loss.)

"I'm not askin' ya to take it," said Big Nick. "I'm tellin' ya. I give ya plenty business and I ain't shovin' around to make a bet. By the way, where is dis jernt yer holler in at?"

"The bookie told him as he hung up," Mrs. Lanning came into the room. "Dis afternoon," he said, "I would like you should listen in da radio for a horse called Merry Soul, seventh at Saratoga."

When she had left, Zipper started calling his New York and Jersey connections. "I wouldn't take any part of dat bet from my grannudda," said the first bookie he phoned. "Da nag izza hottest thing since Bikini."

The Zip phoned three other bookies, but they told him they'd rather bet against Christmas than Merry Soul. There was only one way out—a hedge—he'd have to go to Saratoga and bet two thousand through the pari-mutuel machines. That way, at least he'd break even.

Dr. Lanning came in just as the Zipper was trying to get his pants on over his bandages. "I gotta go, Doc," the bookie pleaded. "Mattera life or cet?"

"You can't," Dr. Lanning began, but then he got an idea. "All right," he said, "but first take a spoonful of this. It will keep your temperature down."

When the Zip woke up, it was midnight and Mrs. Lanning was sitting in the chair alongside his bed.

"What happen inna seventh?" he asked.

"Everything turned out lovely," said the old lady. "Merry Soul won."

"Dat does it," mumbled the bookie.

"I have more good news," said Mrs. Lanning. "A friend of yours named Nick phoned earlier this evening and said he'd stop in and pay his respects on his way to Saratoga tomorrow."

The Zipper sat up. "Now it is a mattera life or det," he said. "Where's my shoes?"

"There, there," said the old lady, "calm yourself." And then she lifted her voice. "Walter!"

Her husband came running up from downstairs, a hypodermic needle in his hand.

The following morning when the Zip opened his eyes he saw Big Nick at the foot of his bed. "I'm on my way to Saratoga," said the hoodlum. "an' I figgered I could cheer ya by stoppin' in an' payin' up."

He threw a wad of bills on the bedspread, and the dazed bookie barely had time to stash the dough under his pillow when the doctor's wife came in.

"Mrs. Lanning," said the Zip, "gimme it straight about Merry Soul in the seventh."

"I fibbed because you seemed so depressed," said the old lady. "Merry Soul was waitin' a minute. I wrote it on a slip of paper—disqualified for fouling."

Some days later, Dr. and Mrs. Lanning waved good-bye to Zipper Joe from the porch of their home.

feel a little guilty about taking a two-thousand-dollar bet," said the doctor. "but Joe insisted. And the funny way he put it—he said a bookie never minds breaking even."

"What's a bookie?" asked his wife.

"Vernacular for bookworm, I imagine," said Dr. Lanning. "Interesting case. He was always reading, and where a studious chap gets that kind of money, I'll never know."

BERLINERS FACE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

Skyrocketing unemployment in Western Berlin is reported jeopardizing the already shaky economy. Scenes above show various aspects of the problem. At upper left, a poster with name plates of Berlin firms is symbolic of the depression. Another plate is taken down—the eighth—meaning another firm has shut down. At upper right, idle Berliners, living on dole money, loaf or fish on the banks of the Spree. Lower left, Berliners in the American sector line up at a labor office for their jobless dole. One out of four workers is idle. Lower right, the chart in Berlin's main labor office shows how unemployment figures zoomed from 50,000 in the summer of 1948 to over 200,000 this year. SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Aug. 30 — Richard Ebling, a regular summer visitor to Shokan, came up from New Jersey to spend the week-end at the Longyear House. "Dick" has recently returned from a trip to Chicago, Milwaukee and other middle west cities.

Mrs. Alfred (Janet) Priven of New York, who has been spending the summer at Camp Temerada, is looking after young Teddy Lukacs while the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lukacs, are away on their annual vacation.

A substantial rainfall Sunday night and Monday forenoon relieved somewhat the local tension over water supply conditions in the reservoir country. While the rain was helpful in many ways, there still was one resident put it, "was not enough of it."

The usual "drouth islands" began making their appearance in the Shokan basin some time ago, and present prospects indicate that more of them will be jutting above the water surface of the two basins long before snow flies.

Improvements at the Olga Pasture store and residence on the Ontario Trail include a deepwell electric pump to replace the smaller pump which has been in use for the past several years.

Callers in the village center Sunday afternoon included Mrs. Fred Cubana of Springfield, Mass., who was enjoying a trip to her old home town of Olive in company with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mario Zucchini, in the couple's new Cadillac sedan. Mrs. Cubana, the former Dora Collins, is a native of the Samsonville section and for a time resided in the old village of Shokan as a girl. She also called on her sister, Sylvia Keator, at Palenstown.

Fred Weeks, Sr., who has built up a good business in kitchen ranges and bottled gas sales during the past two years, has stocked his new showrooms adjoining the Weeks residence. This is the second business building to be erected in the Church Hill neighborhood of Shokan.

Edward Moran and family of the Bronx have been spending a few days at Mrs. Moran's former home here.

Fazel Bell, teacher of the Shokan school, is reported to have asked the Ontario Central School board for a leave of absence pending her recovery from an illness. Miss Bell who is also organist of the Shokan Reformed Church and an active worker in the Sunday School, left Shokan earlier in the month to visit her sister, Mrs. Frank Graham, in Illinois, and word reached here the latter part of the week that she had been hospitalized as a result of appendicitis and complications.

John Thayer, well known Shokan baseball player, has done a good business this summer with his truck in the wholesaling of fruits and vegetables. John covers the reservoir country and also goes up the line to Big Indian and Hunter and out the Rondout Valley to Ellenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sharpe and sons spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. James Carpenter and sons, Thomas and Patrick, their near neighbors in Richmond Hill, L. I.

George Hauser, local member of the reservoir force, has a fine lot of peaches on the trees alongside the Hauser farmhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Casablanca, summer residents, recently attended the funeral of Mrs. Casablanca's maternal grandmother, Jane Potter, who was

Eric Moving Car Repair Shops From Port Jervis

Port Jervis, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Heavy freight car operations at this Erie Railroad division point will be discontinued Thursday, the railroad announced today. Light repairs, painting and other car maintenance work will be continued.

H. D. Barber, Erie vice president for operations and maintenance, said at Cleveland the discontinuance of car rebuilding operations here results from present business conditions and an adequate supply of freight cars. He said the shift would eliminate 113 jobs, but that attempt would be made to assign the men affected to openings created by the five-day 40-hour week which becomes effective for non-operating employees Thursday.

The Erie will continue to employ 910 workers here, with an annual payroll of $3,450,000.

Bridgeport Bees Nose Out Colonials, 5-4, Before 4,000 at Stadium

Red Graham Too Tough in Pinches; Mannino Stars in Relief Role

Herman Schwenk, the Foxhall avenue baker, was the big winner last night at municipal stadium.

While the Kingston Colonials flattered away a 5-4 decision to the Bridgeport Bees before a crowd of 4,000 at Giveaway Night, Schwenk walked off with a brand new automobile before the largest turnout of the season.

Graham Winner

Hamilton "Red" Graham, an old teammate, was credited with the victory and he was aided and comforted by questionable Colonial strategy.

For instance, in the seventh inning, Allen Thomsen was resting on third base with the going run when Danny Perlmuter, who had a fly ball to comparatively short left field, Thomsen tried to score and was a dead duck at the plate.

Graham was extremely agile in handling bunts that throttled the Colonial threats in the late innings. After "Ralph" Matzer drilled a single to right field in the eighth, Joe Spota attempted to bunt and forced Matzer at second.

Manager Emil Gall whacked a pinch double to right center to open Kingston's ninth but Graham converted Thomsen's sacrifice bunt into a force play at third base to quell the last Colonial threat.

Tellefsen Keyed

Red Tellefsen, the Colonial starter, got the hook in the third inning after yielding four straight walks to force in a run. Carmine Mannino gave up a through-the-middle single to Harry Paulus in relief and then settled down to pitch superbly for the remainder of the game. He gave up only four hits and no runs in 6 2/3 frames.

Graham had only one bad inning—the fourth when the Colonials bunched three singles, a double and a walk for three runs. Joe Spota sliced a single along the left field foul line behind Buddy Mahan's single and Matzer's walk for two runs and scored the third on Carl Anstaeht's hit to left. Thereafter Graham and Mannino dueled through five straight scoreless innings.

Drum Corps Stunned

Ralph Matzer collected a double and single in two official trips, while Carl Anstaeht poked two safeties. Bagdon, the Bees shortstop, also poked two hits.

The Port Ewen Drum Corps which marched from the central post office to municipal stadium ahead of the new car set the stage for the carnival atmosphere at the stadium. They went through a short snappy drill routine before the game and the huge crowd sat back, tense and expectant for the big moment.

Chez Emile Beats Jones Dairy, 5-3, on Scheffel's Homer

His Latest Masterpiece?

Lou Little, starting his twentieth year as Columbia's football coach, wonders whether his two sole remaining veterans can carry the load for the Lions this year. Jim Ward, end, and Leon Van Bellingham, fullback, are virtually the only experienced players around whom Little will fashion a team to face Columbia's nine opponents. The Lions open their season against Amherst at Baker Field on Sept. 24 and then face Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania, Army, Cornell, Dartmouth, Navy and Brown on successive Saturdays.

Bagatelles:

What a magnificent institution the Red Sox would be if they could play all their games at Fenway Park! Their recent tribulations lead us to believe however that until they can handle the Indians and Yankees on the road, the American League pennant race is still a wide open affair. If the Yankees have held up so far, despite a flood of injuries, it is reasonable to assume they will be in contention right up to the last out with or without Johnny Mize or Tommy Henrich.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

Vernon Stephens' exploits in Fenway Park make you wonder what Joltin' Joe DiMaggio would have done in that park through a lifetime. For that matter, Ted Williams would have been equally as sensational in the Yankee Stadium. Not against Yankee pitching, of course. The Bristol Owls are the best franchise in the Colonial League. With three home dates remaining on the schedule, exclusive of the playoffs, the league leaders have attracted 4,000 cash customers. Mr. Williams, former Chairman of Commerce secretary, is vacationing in the area. They say the recent protest session at the City Football League was much livelier than the usual routine. The Detroit Lions' rookie fullback, Pop Pannell, had a 7.5 yard rushing average on Notre Dame's undefeated football team in 1948. In September we can expect cool nights that will start to lower the temperature of our fishing waters and increase the activity of big fish. September is the ideal month for musky fishermen.

The Nineteenth Hole:

Great athletic contests like the Leon Randall-Billy Van Aken golf match produce sensational exaggerations. One "expert" told us there were 7,000 people in the gallery. Billy Van Aken knocked four balls out of bounds on the first hole and missed a twelve inch putt on the 35th hole. Slight exaggerations, to be sure. The fact remains it was a dingo-dog affair that had the whole town talking. Miss Bob Culture, who is not numbered among the leading female golfers of the city, made a big hit with her excellent shots in The Freeman hole-in-one play. Mrs. George Rifenbary also excelled on three efforts but had just a little too much power. After watching her, you had to wonder how she ever stays up in the 60's. The Randall-Bell golf play will be staged in one day, 36 holes with the morning 18 holes at Twaalfskill, and the last 18 at Wiltwyck. Dr. Douv Meyers, godfather of the Boice golfing clan, is one Twaalfskillite who flatly picks Boice over Randall.

Of Men and Mice:

Harry Grayson explains the death of outstanding white pugilists with the observation that education and savagery don't mix. "Of course I would say," observed Harry, "it is because in recent years the superior athletes have been exposed to higher education to a much greater extent than they were in the good old days. Were Benny Leonard a youngster today, he'd no doubt be a scuba diver at C.N.Y., and he'd go on to be a fine doctor or a lawyer. A young Gene Tunney would be a rousing tackle at Yale. Jack Dempsey would be carrying the ball for Utah, and so on down the line. It was their intelligence, as much as any other one thing, that made Leonard, Tunney and Dempsey. Louis and many others extraordinary athletes in a wearing trade. But the colleges weren't rushing material then the way they are now, and Leonard, Tunney, Dempsey and the rest went the hard way."

Ray Billows, amateur golf's perennial "bride's maid" is counting on an old give-away putter this year to carry him across the threshold to the National Amateur title in Rochester.

"Looking back, I think every important tournament I've lost can be traced to putting," Billows says. "From tee to green I can stand up with any of them but on the carpets I've been selling for two putts, while the other fellows were taking one. Now I think I've got it licked. I've changed sticks. I'm using an old blade putter I've had around the house for 11 years and discarding the mallet job I've always used. No more mallet putters for me."

South Carolinian Wins Legion Golf Crown

Philadelphia, Aug. 31 (AP)—Preston H. Honnies, Columbia, S. C., is the 1949 American Legion golf champion.

Honnies won the title yesterday by adding a 74-75-149 total to his first day's card of 79-92-151 for a 301 aggregate for the 72 holes.

He succeeds Don Byrd, Muncie, Ind., and the Legion's golfing titlist. Byrd finished in seventh place with a 318 score for the 72 holes.

Sunshine Meeting

The Sunshine and Stars of Tomorrow bowling leagues will hold a combined meeting at the Bowldrome, Cornell street, tonight at 8 o'clock. All teams that bowled in these two leagues and any individuals interested are invited to attend.

Randall-Boice Duel on Monday

Leon Randall of Wiltwyck Golf Club and Alvin Boice of Twaalfskill meet in a 36-hole playoff for the city golf championship on Monday, Labor Day. The first 18 holes will be played at Twaalfskill at 9 a. m. and the second 18 at Wiltwyck starting at 2 p. m. Randall defeated Bill Van Aken and Boice conquered Dick Overbagh for their respective club titles. The winner succeeds Maurice Davenport of Wiltwyck as city champion.

Stranahan-Riegel Winner Probable Amateur Champion

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Two hotshot favorites, Robert (Skeet) Riegel and Frank Stranahan, met today in a third round tussle that many predicted would decide the National Amateur golf championship.

These two Walker Cup teammates, both apparently at the peak of their games, tie off at 0-18 a. m. (E.S.T.).

This is the one, they are saying around Oak Hill. The winner of this 18-hole duel should go on to take Willie Turnesa's title on Saturday.

But Turnesa, a quiet little individual, is still around to say something about that. Willie won yesterday. A tough match that forced him to go all the way and shoot a sub-par 69. He edged Harold Foreman of Glenview, Ill., one up.

It was another bad day for the British as that country's two main hopes, British Amateur Champion Max McCredy and Ronnie White, were sent to the sidelines.

But most of the other favorites survived, including Ray Billows, the 1948 runner-up, who was forced into extra holes by Gene Forges of Portland, Ore. Three of the English Walker coppers—Ken Thom, Art Penowne and Joe Carr—also survived.

Carr figures in another headline match today when he takes on Jimmy McCallie, the U. S. Walker capper from Philadelphia. The winner will get the Riegel-Stranahan survivor in the afternoon.

Thus a lot of action is packed in that small segment of the day that now, after two days of exhausting eliminations, has reduced the field to 64. It'll be 16 at dinner-time tonight.

Riegel, the 34-year-old former champion from Tulsa, Okla., and Stranahan, the Toledo millionaire with the muscles, both won impressively yesterday just by way of setting a perfect stage for their engagement.

Riegel won over Pat Mucci of Paterson, N. J., 6 and 5. Stranahan expelled Norman Mann of Los Angeles, 5 and 4.

McCredy fell before a par barage set down by Dan Carmichael of Columbus, Ohio, 5 and 4.

White, regarded as Britain's outstanding amateur shotmaker, was eliminated by P. J. Boalwright of Spartanburg, S. C., 3 and 2.

Three-Run Wallop Puts Chezzies One Up in Playoffs

Lefty Joe Jordan Is Winning Hurler

Bud Scheffel's three-run homer in the sixth inning, a towering blast over the right field snow fence was the deciding blow in Chez Emile's 5 to 3 victory over Jones Dairy in the City League's Shaughnessy finals yesterday before another large crowd at the Athletic Field.

The Chezzies lead the series 1-0 with the clubs scheduled to resume action at 6 p. m. today. Tommy Fisher and Lefty Joe Jordan were knotted in a 2-2 deadlock when Ken Lowe laced a double to left and raced to third on Ray Lindhurst's single. Scheffel picked this spot for his four-ply wallop.

Jordan permitted six hits, walked three and fanned five, while Fisher yielded one more safety, walked a pair and fanned nine. No player on either side collected more than one safety.

Lefty Gil's walk and a sacrifice bunt by Link Crosby set up Chez Emile's first tally in the first inning. Gil headed for third when Crosby was thrown out at first and continued home when Scheffel threw wild attempting to head him off at third. Singles by Shattun, Vertelus and Glaser put Chezzies ahead 2-0 in the second.

Errors Aid Dairymen

Two juicy errors figured in Jones' two-run rally in the third when Red Whitaker walked. Zachary singled and Whitaker went all the way when Crosby let the hit go through his legs. Back hit Glaser who let the ball

Bob "Schoolboy" Bush and Bill Windburn are the starting pitchers in this evening's contest. Due to an injury to Bob Tierney, the third umpire's slot was taken over by Joe Messenger, the P.A. man. Ashokan Nine Beats Woodstock Club, 14-5

Colorado U. Draws Them From the World

Boulder, Col. (Aug. 29)—On the Campus of the University of Colorado, one will see dark skinned Indians from Pakistan rubbing elbows with young cow-punchers from the deep South; the sharp talk of Sweden and Norway tries to blend with the soft tones of an Egyptian scholar from the banks of the Nile.

They come from all over the world to attend and here an old fashioned College Spirit prevails—especially as far as Dress is concerned.

The easy informality of the West overwhelms any student with conservative inclinations. Corduroy sport coats are the dominant choice of both the men and women students. Easy hanging Campus Cabanoches are worn on all occasions. Free swinging sport shirts in every conceivable color or pattern save laundry bills and make for an extra dollar's savings on the washing.

Reds Up to Tricks

Berlin, Aug. 31 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley predicted today Russia would try more tricks to oust the western allies from Berlin. The retiring U. S. commandant of Berlin told a news conference "they will keep trying tricks and pressure as long as they think they can get away with it." At his final news conference before sailing for home next week, Howley paid a long, earnest tribute to the German people of Berlin and predicted "your city will one day be the capital of a united Germany."

ON THE USE OF MADAM

The following letter reflects the times: "I do general housework, living in the house. I am the only maid in a large house and family. They are very kind and considerate people. Everybody helps a little and my position in the house is that of a friend compared with what I've been accustomed to. Before, when I worked in larger houses that had other help, we called the lady of the house 'Madam.' It seemed right to me then, but it seems rather formal in this situation. Shall I say 'Mrs. Doe,' or am I wrong about 'Madam'? I wish you'd advise me. 'Madam' is always correct—though, under many circumstances, 'Mrs. Doe' would be proper. My suggestion is to ask her which she prefers.

Flowers to Stranger
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it out of place to send flowers to the funeral of the deceased whom we did not know, merely out of respect for someone in the family of whom we think very highly?
Answer: It will be entirely proper. In fact, you may have the flowers addressed to the one whom you know, "at the funeral of" whoever it is.

Refreshments at Reception
Dear Mrs. Post: At a very large gathering at which only small sandwiches, cakes and punch will be served, would it be best to let the guests help themselves or should the punch cups be passed on trays and the serving plates passed?
Answer: Such light refreshments are best passed around, with no attempt to make the table setting a feature of the dining table.

Wedding Invitation Polite
Dear Mrs. Post: Don't you honestly believe that when someone receives a wedding invitation from a distance, it is purely and simply a bid for a present?
Answer: No, on the contrary! Such an invitation carries no obligation whatever but is merely a courteous way of letting someone know he would be welcome were he able to be present. Sending a gift is entirely a question of personal impulse.

Mrs. Post's leaflet, E-9, "Engraved Wedding Perms for a Widow (and Divorced)," gives the correct form.
To obtain a copy, send five cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. (Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Covers Korean Cross
Rome (AP)—When a workman was unable to remove a granite cross from atop a Korean Catholic school building, Communists covered the cross with a metal drum. Fides, the International Catholic News agency, reported from Seoul. The report said that when Reds occupied Won-Sun they took over the Benedictine school for use as a Communist school. A workman was ordered to remove the cross atop the building but the heavy stone was too much for him.

Business School To Open Sept. 6
On the threshold of a new school year, the Moran-Spencerian School of Business, situated in the Freeman Building, 237-239 Fair street, is prepared to receive a fine class of young people at the opening of its fall term on Tuesday, September 6. Secretarial and accounting groups will be organized on that day.
Of unusual significance is the fact that next week will mark the beginning of the first fall term of the consolidated Moran-Spencerian School. Since the announcement last spring that the Moran School of Business had purchased Spencer's Business School, the combined Moran-Spencerian School has become fully organized and consolidated in the beautifully renovated Freeman Building, under the principalship of Joseph J. Morgan.
The uniting of these two schools, with a combined record of 95 years of service to students and employers, is expected to strengthen the position of private business education and add its prestige throughout the wide area served by the Moran-Spencerian.
In the selection of office personnel, employers today are placing increased emphasis on ability and efficiency. This fact is much more evident today, according to Principal Morgan, than at any other time within the last eight or 10 years. Superficial training will not suffice. Those who aspire to positions of the better type must resolve to expend the time and effort required for the attainment of today's efficiency standards.
There is still ample time to complete arrangements for enrolling. The school office is open daily for the registration of students. To those who cannot call personally, application forms will be mailed on request. Desk reservations may be made by telephoning Kingston 178.

Recruiting Office On Limited Schedule
The U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force recruiting station, located in Room 201, at the main post office, Kingston, will operate on a limited schedule beginning September 1, it was announced today by M/Sgt. A. H. McGinnis, station commander.
McGinnis, who has been ordered to school at Camp Lee, Va., for 30 days, between the above dates, will not be replaced due to a lack of trained personnel. However, the Poughkeepsie recruiting station will have a man at the Kingston office each Monday and Friday between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. to process interested applicants during McGinnis's absence.
The Kingston station, which serves Saugerties and New Paltz, as well as the surrounding area, will resume full time operation on October 10.
